Cal Poly Pomona to Stage Active Shooter Drill May 23

POMONA, Calif. — May 16, 2008 — The campus shooting will be staged, but the lessons will be very real when Cal Poly Pomona conducts an active shooter drill on Friday, May 23. This is part of an ongoing effort by the university for emergency preparedness.

The active shooter drill will be held at an undisclosed time and location. A number of groups will take part in the exercise, including university students and staff, University Police Department, Pomona Police Department, Los Angeles County Fire Station No. 187 and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department's Walnut/Diamond Bar Station.

Drills are meant to help the university improve emergency response procedures and response times in a real emergency situation. The university conducts emergency exercises year round with varying scenarios. Last June, the University Police and Pomona Police Department jointly participated in an active shooter training scenario.

Cal Poly Pomona is among 23 CSU campuses holding active shooter drills this spring.
