Cal Poly Pomona Class Donates Self-Manufactured Baby Clothing to Local Hospital

POMONA, Calif. — June 6, 2008 — If you don't believe college coursework can have a real world application, you might want to go to the Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center on Tuesday, June 10, at about 2 p.m.

Students in Dr. Muditha Senanayake's Apparel Production class will be visiting the hospital to donate gift sets of newborn clothing and accessories they have designed and manufactured themselves. They will present the volunteer department with 10 sets of mittens, hooded blankets/towels, baby sacks and quillows (a novel combination of a quilt and pillow). The sets will be given to families with need.

The products were developed for a team project in the class, which is under the Apparel Merchandising and Management program.
