“Paradigm Shift” at the Cal Poly Pomona Downtown Center Explores Work of Craig French

POMONA, Calif. — A collection of artwork examining the evolution of Craig French’s work is now on display at the Cal Poly Pomona Downtown Center in a new exhibit titled, “Paradigm Shift.” The exhibit premiered Sept. 5 and will run through Sept. 30.

Guests are invited to attend the free Second Saturday Artwalk and artist reception at the Downtown Center on Sunday, Sept. 13 from 6 to 9 p.m. where they will be joined by the artist himself. There will be a closing reception on Saturday, Sept. 27 from 6 to 9 p.m.

Curated by George Cuttress, the exhibit looks at French’s early years of vibrant colors and neon, to the contemplative simplicity of his recent wall sculptures. French is particularly known for his unique mixed media construction.

The Cal Poly Pomona Downtown Center is located at 300 West Second Street in Pomona. During the summer, the gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday, from noon to 6 p.m. Every second Saturday of the month, the gallery is open from 1 to 9 p.m.
